Keiser University's College of Chiropractic Medicine
Announces Scholarship Opportunity with Rosenthal, Levy, Simon & Sosa

Keiser University's College of Chiropractic Medicine (KUCCM) is pleased to announce the establishment of a scholarship made possible through the generosity of community law firm partners Rosenthal, Levy, Simon, & Sosa. The scholarship is designed to support the health of South Floridians by encouraging a graduate to practice locally and will be awarded annually to a KUCCM student who plans to practice in Palm Beach or Martin counties.

"As the newest college of chiropractic medicine in the country, we maintain a sharp level of focus on serving our local community and are pleased to partner with Rosenthal, Levy, Simon, & Sosa to recognize and assist a student who wants to support South Florida friends and neighbors as a healthcare provider. From serving our community through an excellent on-campus clinic to encouraging graduates to practice locally, we are always searching for new ways to provide services, resources, and practitioners needed by our community," said KUCCM Dean Dr. Michael Wiles.

The Keiser University Doctor of Chiropractic program provides students the opportunity to combine traditional lectures with small group learning, weekly conferences and seminars, laboratory and experiential sessions, and clinical training opportunities at several sites. Throughout the ten semesters of study, several cross-cutting themes are embedded within the courses, enabling students to integrate their studies around a clinically relevant framework. "As longtime residents and leaders in Palm Beach and Martin Counties, the decision to partner with Keiser University's College of Chiropractic Medicine in establishing an endowed scholarship was an easy one. We share similar values in terms of serving the needs of our community and see this as an excellent opportunity to not only help a deserving student but to better the health of South Floridians well into the future through this endowed fund," said Rosenthal, Levy, Simon, & Sosa managing partner Steven Simon.
